DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 1-19 objected to because of the following informalities: The claims comprise numbers in parenthesis. The numbers in parenthesis in the claims should be deleted. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1, 2, 4 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Henry 5,590,396.

Regarding claim 1, Henry discloses a method for saving power in a wireless communication network (400) including a plurality of devices (401i), comprising the steps of: a device (401) (mobile station 109, see fig. 1, col. 4, lines 24-26) announcing a sleep period in a beacon (600) of the device as an announcing device (mobile station 109 transmitting information indicating that it is entering a deep-sleep state, see abstract, col. 9, lines 1-10); the announcing device (401) hibernating in a hibernation mode as a hibernating device (401) during the announced sleep period wherein the device (401) does not transmit a beacon (600) during the sleep period (mobile station 109 entering a deep-sleep state, see abstract, col. 7, lines 35-53, col. 8, lines 19-27 and col. 9, lines 1-10).

Regarding claim 2 as applied to claim 1, Henry further discloses wherein the announcing step further comprises the device (401) including a sleep period start time (303) and a sleep period duration (304) in the beacon (see abstract, col. 7, lines 35-53, col. 8, lines 19-27 and col. 9, lines 1-10).

Regarding claim 4 as applied to claim 1, Henry further discloses further comprising the step of other devices (401i) than the hibernating device (401) keeping information on the presence of the beacon (600) of the hibernating device (401) in their beacons (600) during the announced sleep period of the hibernating device (401) (see abstract, col. 7, lines 35-53, col. 8, lines 19-27 and col. 9, lines 1-10).

Regarding claim 15 as applied to claim 1, Henry further discloses including a plurality of devices (401i) that save power by announcing hibernation in their beacon frames (600) by performing the power-saving method of claim 1 (see abstract, col. 7, lines 35-53, col. 8, lines 19-27 and col. 9, lines 1-10).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 2617

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

2. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Henry 5,590,396 in view of Simpson et al 20050124313 (hereinafter Simpson).

Regarding claim 3 as applied to claim 1, Henry further discloses the hibernating device (401) periodically waking up to listen for beacons (600) of other devices (401i) (see abstract, col. 7, lines 54-59).

Art Unit: 2617

Henry does not specifically disclose the hibernating device returning to a hibernation mode if other devices (401i) have indicated no pending traffic for the hibernating device (401) in their beacons.

In the same field of endeavor, Simpson discloses a subscriber device [see p.2, [0020]-[0021]] returning to a hibernation mode if other devices (401i) (access point, see p.3, [0029]-[0030]) have indicated no pending traffic for the hibernating device (401) in their beacons (subscriber unit entering a sleep mode if the subscriber knows it will not be receiving data from an access point, see p.3, [0029]-[0030]).

It would therefore have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the teaching of Henry, by having a subscriber device enter a sleep mode when a has determined from communication with an access point that it will not receive data, for the benefit of saving the power of the subscriber device.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 5-14 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Emeott et al 20050043027 discloses a method and apparatus for facilitating data transmissions.

Pinter et al 5,924,017 discloses a method and system for adaptively setting wake-up intervals in paging devices.

Larsson et al 6,463,307 discloses a method and apparatus for power savings in a mobile terminal with established connections.
